

Ellen is an established and sought after junior who specialises in crime, regulatory, and professional discipline, and is frequently instructed in work well beyond her call. She is particularly regarded for her engaging advocacy and authoritative delivery. Ellen is equally respected for her ability to put clients at ease by establishing their confidence and trust quickly.

Ellen is regularly instructed to both prosecute and defend in a wide range of cases including offences against the person, dishonesty, drugs, sexual offences, intellectual property, driving offences, breach proceedings and cases involving proceeds of crime applications. Ellen provides advice and assistance to both the prosecution and defence on all aspects and stages of the criminal and regulatory enforcement process including: enforcement notices, the investigation, the decision to prosecute, and PII and disclosure issues. She also regularly advises on evidence, procedure, sentence and appeal.

Ellen is a level 3 Crown Court prosecutor, and often receives instructions as a regulatory and private prosecutor. In this capacity she frequently prosecutes for government departments (the HMRC, DWP, DVLA and DVSA) local councils and organisations such as the Post Office. Ellen is a member of the specialist regulatory advocates panel in Health and Safety and Environmental law.

In her defence practice Ellen receives instructions to act along-side leading counsel but also regularly acts as solely instructed counsel in cases where the prosecution, and other defendants, have both leading and junior counsel.

Ellen accepts instructions on all types of regulatory and public law matters

Crime

Ellen is a level 3 prosecutor and undertakes a wide range of criminal defence and prosecution work including violence, dishonesty, drugs, public disorder, sexual offences, driving, regulatory offences and confiscation proceedings.

Ellen is also frequently instructed as a private prosecutor, undertaking work for The Insolvency Service, the Post Office, HMRC, the DWP, the DVLA, the DVSA and TM EYE Legal.

Ellen also receives instructions to defend against prosecutions by local authorities and other bodies including the RSPCA, she also has experience defending in cases when instructed by the Police Federation.

Ellen regularly prepares and presents legal applications and arguments, such as bad character, dismissal, disclosure, abuse of process, applications to exclude evidence, and submissions of no case to answer. Ellen has been instructed in cases involving vulnerable witnesses requiring the use of ABE interviews and intermediaries and has experience in applying for and responding to special measures and ground rules applications as well as the s28 procedure.

Ellen is regularly instructed by Greater Manchester Police and the Serious Fraud Office as independent counsel for legal privilege determinations wherein she reviews material to assess whether it is subject to legal professional privilege. These instructions often require a detailed Advice to facilitate disclosure in complex multi-handed cases. Ellen has also received instructions as disclosure counsel including cases where there are PII applications.

Ellen was instructed as junior counsel to the Independent Inquiry into Child Sexual Abuse, specifically instructed on the Roman Catholic Investigation (July 2017-2019). The investigation considered the extent to which the Nolan and Cumberlege reviews of child protection in the Roman Catholic Church improved the Church's policy and practice considering 3 case studies: firstly the English Benedictine Congregation focusing on the Schools Ampleforth and Downside, second: Ealing Abbey and St Benedict's School and thirdly: the Archdiocese of Birmingham.

Ellen took a leading role in the review of disclosed material and supervised the redaction process. She was responsible for drafting Rule 9 statement requests and assisted with preparation for the public hearings, including the formulation of evidence proposals as well as drafting witness questions for leading counsel, she also oversaw the rule 10 procedure determining which questions from the Core Participants would be adopted by Counsel to the Inquiry. She attended the public hearings as junior counsel and was one of the four counsel who drafted the Ampleforth and Downside report.

Ellen is a regulatory list C practitioner and accepts instructions to both prosecute and defend in regulatory cases, she has particular experience in this area having been led in two separate cases by Andrew Thomas QC prosecuting a defendant company for corporate manslaughter and health and safety offences (R v BCHL). Ellen accepts instructions in all Environment Agency and Health and Safety Executive matters.

Ellen has experience in licensing cases and is frequently instructed to deal with cases involving taxi licensing. Ellen also receives instructions in education authority work, trading standards, anti-social behaviour and food hygiene.

Ellen spent time assisting senior counsel in Fitness to Practice proceedings before the MPTS, as well as researching various aspects of substantive and procedural law for the General Medical Council and advising on a number of topics including service on doctors residing in a foreign jurisdiction and has also undertaken work for the Royal College of Nursing. Ellen also has experience of representing individuals in the Mental Health Tribunal.
